PITTSTON.

Eight valuable cows owned by Samuel Davis and his neighbors in the vi civity of the Boston mine sustained injuries that resulted in their death on Saturday last. The cows wandered to the Letigh Valley out off tracks where they were met by a locomotive pulling a train of cars. The cows took fright and instead of leaving the track started to run ahead of the rapidly approach-ing engine. The cows kept the track for nearly a quarter of a mile. The train kept gaining and finally struck the rear cow tossing it down the embankment. The other cows sec-ing the danger left the track at a point where a mass of stone lay. In jumping, the cows landed promiscously on the ledge of rock with the result that every one of them were so badly in-jured from broken legs that their owners were compelled to kill them.

FOLLIES OF THE PAST.

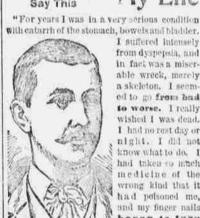

New York Herald. It is significant and encouraging to note that nowhere has the spirit of loyalty to the government been stronger than in the south. By the press, in public meetings, and by the voice of the south on the floor of congress but one sentiment has been expressed, and that is in applause of the gen eral government for its action to uphole the national supremacy when menaced by defiance and violence. No better proof is needed that sectional feeling and stickling for state rights are, both north and south, follies of the past.
